A Sample Argumentative Essay

(This essay is taken from the HIPPO site of the Language Centre at <http://hippo.ust.hk/> originally intended as a sample essay for argumentative writing in IELTS. This is rather long for our assignment but nonetheless gives an idea how arguments and counterarguments can be included to form a coherent piece of persuasion. You need to write 250 to 300 words only for this assignment.)

Beauty pageants and competitions take place all over the world nowadays, even in China. Some take place in small towns on a very small scale. Others, such as the Miss World Contest, are huge events that bring lots of money to the nations that host them. Last year this was China. These contests are watched by millions of people all over the world. However, some people believe that contests like this should be banned because they are degrading for women and promote sexual discrimination. I do not agree with this opinion.

For many years beauty pageants and competitions were banned in my country, China. Now the government has lifted this ban and many such events take place. I believe that these competitions represent a new kind of freedom and openness in my country. Hosting events such as the Miss World Contest, just like hosting the 2008 Beijing Olympics, is also proof of economic development and progress and gives China prestige on the international stage.

I do not accept that beauty pageants degrade their participants because the girls who compete in these pageants are not unwilling participants. No one forces them to get involved. They do so of their own free will. Being crowned Miss China, Miss Beijing or even Miss 'small town' must do great things for a girl's self esteem.

I also do not believe that these competitions promote sexual discrimination. Girls who enter these competitions are not judged only on their looks. These girls have grace and intelligence, as well as beauty. They are artistic and refined. Why shouldn't they show off their talents? Indeed, these young women are role models for other young Chinese girls who are encouraged to improve themselves by watching these competitions. Interestingly, most of the judges of beauty pageants in my country, as well as the people in the audience, are women!

Finally, we must also remember that beauty pageants are just another form of entertainment. I believe that there are many other forms of entertainment that do far greater damage to women than beauty pageants. Think, for example, about some of the images of violence against women in films or even comic books.

For the reasons mentioned above, I am strongly opposed to the idea of banning beauty contests. Instead I hope that in my country they continue to gain in popularity and we can continue to celebrate feminine beauty. (398 words)
